

John and Linda Donovan honored at Myopia Horse Show

Photos

Courtesy photo

Linda Donovan, left, and Professor John Donovan were honored by Donald Little, Master of Foxhounds, at the 109th annual Myopia Horse Show.

GateHouse News Service

Posted Sep 24, 2009 @ 04:16 PM

Hamilton — Professor John Donovan and his wife, Linda Donovan were honored at the 109th celebration of the Myopia Horse Show.

Donald Little, Master of Foxhounds for the Myopia Hunt and Senior Vice-President UBS, a major sponsor of the event, also representing the Essex County Trail Association, honored Professor Donovan for conservation work that is “spectacular,” and honored Linda Donovan for her work “above and beyond the call of duty,” and appointed her assistant to the master of the Myopia Hunt.

Professor Donovan and his family’s conservation activities have extended to contributing to the town of Hamilton the full-time use recreational fields for soccer, Little League baseball, and girls’ lacrosse. As Paul Rigol, Hamilton Park Foreman said this week, “One must view this gift through the eyes of children. When they walk onto this field and see the entire complex, it is magical. The town is eternally grateful for the contribution of the Donovan family.” Professor John Donovan and his son John Donovan spent three years preparing the one of the finest fields on the North Shore.

Professor Donovan came out of retirement to become a Scholar at MIT, working in the area of stem cell research. He and his wife reside in Hamilton and Manchester.

Copyright 2009 Hamilton-Wenham Chronicle. Some rights reserved

Tools

Print

Comment

ShareThis

Loading commenting interface...